

The spectacular Rettenberg Castle

Crossing a wooden suspension bridge carefully above Weer

Alpencamping Mark

AUSTRIA

Alpencamping Mark, Tyrol

In the wide valley floor of the River Inn just east of Innsbruck we found the village of Weer and the lovely Alpencamping Mark. The welcome here was friendly and helpful and we had soon chosen a pitch with mountain views and had a plan for a walk the next day.

The pitches are grassy on well-drained soil, arranged in rows and the site is well kept by the family with colourful flower beds and comfortable seating areas. Tasty Austrian bread is available to order every morning and the bar is open in the mornings for breakfast, or coffee and home-made cakes and in the evenings for drinks as well as an evening restaurant.

The central facilities in the main building are clean and include family showers. For hot weather the campsite has an outdoor pool. The family are proud of their Austrian Haflinger horses and, if you bring your own kit, you can book an hour's ride on one of these beautiful steeds.

The village of Weer is less than 1km (0.6 miles) from the site and has a supermarket and other shops as well as a rococo church. Half-an-hour's walk across the river is a railway station with trains to Innsbruck.

This is a great walking area with attractive mountain and valley routes. We walked around the Weerberg, firstly to the ruined Rettenberg Castle with views of the surrounding mountains. After crossing an unnerving wooden suspension bridge we climbed through meadows full of flowers to Mitterweerberg.

In a charming traditional wooden chalet we found the fascinating Rablhaus Museum. The museum collects local superstitions and beliefs, cures and folk medicine. All the information is in German so we didn't always follow the stories as we explored the rooms but those we understood generally foretold doom! There is also a small shop and we bought some local honey and enjoyed coffee and cake in the café.
