

SCOTLAND

Silvercraigs Caravan Park, Dumfries & Galloway

Fishing boats at Kirkcudbright

The ruins of MacLellan's Castle in Kirkcudbright

Silvercraigs in the evening sunshine

A campsite overlooking a town has many advantages for the campervan owner, with cafés, restaurants, attractions and public transport all close by. Silvercraigs Caravan Park at Kirkcudbright sits above the town and combines all those local amenities with the added bonus of Barrhill Woods if you fancy a short stroll.

We booked the site online, choosing our pitch, and received an email with all the information we needed to get through the barrier, access the sanitary block and sign into the WiFi, so we didn't need to arrive while reception was open.

The campsite has hardstanding pitches, spaces for tents, and is kept tidy with a spotlessly clean facilities block and launderette.

Kirkcudbright has more museums than many larger towns and we only managed to visit two of the three! Kirkcudbright Galleries had the Galloway Hoard on display and we would have been foolish not to see this collection of Viking treasure.

The Stewartry was an old name for the local county and the Stewartry Museum is a purpose-built museum from the nineteenth century that displays a diverse range of objects, many donated by local people.

Sauntering from the harbour in Kirkcudbright we passed the sixteenth century MacLellan's Castle and explored some of Kirkcudbright's streets of colourfully painted houses. On previous trips we have visited the National Trust for Scotland's Broughton House and Garden. This elegant Edwardian house was home to one of Kirkcudbright's many artists and has a Japanese-inspired garden that is planted for year-round interest.

After buying cakes for later from one of the town bakeries, we had lunch in an excellent café. Fuelled by tea and cheese toasties, we followed one of the many walks that can be downloaded from dumfries-and-galloway.co.uk

Along the shore we stopped often to watch the birds feeding on the salt marsh and mudflats. After climbing up the hill behind Kirkcudbright we made our way through Barrhill Woods to the campsite to enjoy well-earned tea and cake back at our campervan.

Carol Kubicki

PLAN YOUR STAY

© Crown copyright 2022 Ordnance Survey. Media 006/22.
The licence is valid until 31 December 2022

- Silvercraigs Road, Kirkcudbright, Dumfries & Galloway DG6 4BH
- 01557 337068
- silvercraigscarvanpark@gmail.com
- silvercraigscarvanpark.co.uk
- All year
- Two adults, pitch, electric: From £24

Nearest public transport: 10 minutes' walk

Nearest pub/restaurant: 10 minutes' walk

Directions: From A75, drive through Kirkcudbright town and main crossroads then take second left (just past tennis courts). Go straight up hill then Silvercraigs is 350 metres up on left

THE FINEST CAMPSITES For the ultimate touring experience with 100 campsites in the UK and Ireland visit premier-parks.co.uk

PREMIER
PARKS 2022
The finest campsites, independently assessed.